NOTE

Under the law, the "author" of a work is the person who actually creates the work, and the copyright law gives the author the right to control the work. In some cases, the author may be a corporation or other legal entity. In such cases, the author is the legal entity, not the individual who actually creates the work. The author of a work made for hire is the employer or other person for whom the work was prepared, if the work was created by an employee within the scope of his or her employment. The author of a work created by an independent contractor is the contractor, unless there is an agreement in writing between the parties that the work is to be considered a work made for hire. If there is such an agreement, the author is the employer or other person for whom the work was prepared.

NATURE OF AUTHORSHIP Identify the nature of material created by this author in which copyright is claimed.
