because it's apple. they are an os competitor. i don't want to give apple an early look at chicago. apple is full of religious fanatics who see msft as the devil incarnate. as a result, there is no doubt in my mind it will cross the wall no matter what the nda says to the people in the mac division.

Sometime soon when you have a minute to chat, I'd like to understand why.

i don't want to give them the beta at all. it if turns out to be a deal breaker, i could see giving them at rtm - 2 months.

This is different than what you told me this morning... I take it it's now ok w/ you to send him something like M6, but not an earlier beta, right?

they wanted the 3.1 beta too. no betas. we'll see if it's a deal breaker for him.
