I guess we were supposed to send Aer a copy of vterm 2.0 for them to test. Since we did not, they are not totally convinced that vterm (any version) works yet. So, they want a copy of vterm 2.0 so they can test it. if it works, that will be fine. I guess they did not want to take our word for it. At least you don't have to test 1.2 if you can send them 2.0. If you can get the disk over to Carol today, she can send it out with the confproc stuff that is scheduled to ship tomorrow.

3rd wave also wants to know when the next "final" version of rondos is scheduled. They need by 12/15. Is there any more work to be done? Or can we call what we have now final?

thanks
jeff
